Retailers Back New War Industry Board Nazis Jittery Over Invasion Plan of Allies

RESOLUTION OF SUPPORT VOTED BY DIRECTORS

Whole-Hearted Co-operation Pledged to 5-Man Group Heading Movement.

FIRST TO TAKE ACTION

Names Board as 'Qualified Representative' of City's Retail Interests.

The Retail Merchants association got solidly behind the newly-created war industry board today—the first organization to take such a step.

The association's board of directors, meeting at the Mansfield-Leland hotel at noon today, adopted a resolution approving creation of the five-man war industry board and pledging to it whole-hearted support.

The five-man war industry board was created only yesterday to work toward obtaining new war industry for Mansfield. Members of the board are Attorney C. H. Henkel, chairman; Henry G. Brunner, George W. Stephens, John W. Graham and Joy A. Herbert.

Unemployment due to conversion of existing Mansfield factories to war production has resulted, in the first six months of this year, in a 23 per cent decrease in retail business here, pre-paid sales tax figures from the office of the state treasurer in Columbus show.

The most recent report of State Treasurer Don Ehrhart, for the week ending July 18 showed sales tax receipts in Richland county of $8,588 as compared to $13,766 a year ago, a drop of 37 per cent for the week.

Total sales tax figures for the year in Richland county to date are $294,555 as compared to $396,622 for the same period last year, a drop of 25 per cent.

Today's resolution was presented by Merle Pecht, president of the Retail Merchants association, and was unanimously adopted.

Describing the Retail Merchants' association as the "qualified representative of the city's retail interests" the resolution called for recognition of the war industry board and the purposes for which it had been established.

It also pledged the association to "accept their responsibility to"

FACES FIRING SQUAD IN UTAH

Man, 25, Convicted of Slaying Motorist Who Gave Him Ride.

SALE LAKE CITY.—(AP)—Donald Lawton Condit, 25, convicted hitch-hike slayer from Los Angeles, today faced execution by a firing squad at dawn Thursday as Gov. Herbert B. Maw of Utah announced he would not intervene.

A former convict from San Quentin, Cal., Condit was found guilty of the robbery-murder of Harold A. Thorne, Salt Lake City salesman who had given him a ride from Las Vegas, Nev., to Cedar City, Utah, March 20, 1941.

Deputy Sheriff R. E. Adams of Iron county said that five men had been selected for the firing squad. Utah is the only state which uses the firing squad method of execution.

Firemen Battle $2,000 Blaze In Mansfield Home

Attributed to spontaneous combustion in a clothes closet opening off a children's room and discovered shortly after two little girls had quit playing there, fire and smoke caused damage of $2,000 or more to the W. E. Slaybaugh home, 589 Andover road, last evening.

Flames were held in check until the arrival of firemen from central station by F. B. Hout, 582 Andover road, who, aided by a laborer, played streams of water from lawn hoses on the blaze.

They were summoned by Mr. Slaybaugh who today expressed high praise of the work of the firemen.

'FREEZES' OIL

WPB Bans Deliveries of Fuel on Eastern Seaboard.

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—The war production board today banned deliveries of fuel oil for the operation of heating and cooling equipment from Aug. 3 to Sept. 15 along the Atlantic seaboard in order to build up reserve stocks for next winter's needs.

The action was taken at the request of Oil Co-ordinator James H. Jones, who said that the action applies to private homes as well as public buildings and industries. Fuel oil deliveries have been restricted to 50 per cent of normal since March 14.

The ban on deliveries between Aug. 3 and Sept. 15 embraces most of the 17 East Coast states from Maine to Florida and the District of Columbia. The provision does not apply to fuel oil used for agricultural or industrial process or for research operations.

TRY BLACKOUT

Athens Citizens To Test Defense Precautions Friday Night.

COLUMBUS.—(AP)—A trial blackout will be staged at Athens Friday night, Ralph Stone, acting director of the state defense council, announced today.

All plans for the test have been approved by Maj. Charles Miller, liaison officer for the army in Ohio, Stone said.

TWO KILLED

Woman Slain by Sutor Who Turns Gun on Self.

SHARON, Pa.—(AP)—A 20-year-old bank secretary was shot and killed by a sutor on Main street today. The man then killed himself with a sawed-off shotgun.

Police Chief William E. Stuart, who reported the shooting, said it was a case of murder and suicide, but that the motive was unknown.

POLICIES FOR COUNTY WAR CHEST SET UP

C. A. Hines Named Chairman of Admissions, Distribution Committee.

OTHERS APPOINTED

Code Under Which Program Will Operate Adopted During Session.

Mansfield and Richland county's new War Chest organization moved a step nearer its first campaign last night with the adoption of policies governing the organization and the appointment of an admissions and distribution committee that will determine the agencies eligible to participate and the amount each will receive.

Cloyd A. Hines, president of Farm Tools, Inc., was named chairman of the 13-member admissions and distribution committee that will serve from one to three years. H. G. Brunner, president of the War Chest organization, made the appointment at a meeting of the organization held in the Chamber of Commerce rooms last night.

The committee will act under rules governing the eligibility of agencies as provided in the code of operations adopted by the organization upon recommendation of a special committee headed by Mayor R. C. Goebel. Other members of this committee were Alvin J. H. Gongwer and Clarence Fike.

It will be the duty of this committee, it was pointed out, to investigate every applicant for admission, determine the amount each participant is to receive and submit its report to the War Chest executive committee.

Other members on the admission and distribution committee appointed by Brunner for a three-year term were W. J. Spreng, A. E. Courtney, Charles Fuchs of Mansfield, and Atty. F. C. Long of Shelby. Appointed for a two-year term were H. W. Arlin, Mrs. A. J. Goldsmith, R. M. Calene, L. A. Ott and Oliver Honkel. One-year appointees were Supt. W. L. Miller and Mrs. Milo W. Heiber of Mansfield.

HITS FDR ORDER

Counsel For Saboteurs Says Military Trial Invalid.

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Counsel for seven of the eight alleged Nazi saboteurs being tried by a military commission today said the Supreme Court today that President Roosevelt's proclamation denying them access to the civil courts was "totally invalid and unconstitutional."

This challenge of the war time powers of the chief executive and commander-in-chief was made in a brief in support of a petition for a writ of habeas corpus. In effect, the defendants' army officer counsel asked the court to take the prisoners out of the hands of the commission appointed by Mr. Roosevelt and let them be tried in the civil courts.

The request was made at an extraordinary session of the nation's highest tribunal convened on call of Chief Justice Stone.

Ohioan Faces Prison Term For Evasion Of Draft.

SPRINGFIELD.—(AP)—S. M. Rice, 26, Springfield, today faced a five-year term in a federal penitentiary as a draft evader. He was sentenced by Judge Robert Nevin after a jury found him guilty on a charge of failing to report for induction into the army.

Take Photog In Custody for Taking War Plant Pictures

Alertness of a Mansfield woman in noting the license number yesterday of a non-resident photographer's car aided the police sabotage squad in apprehending a man who had been taking pictures of a Mansfield war industry plant.

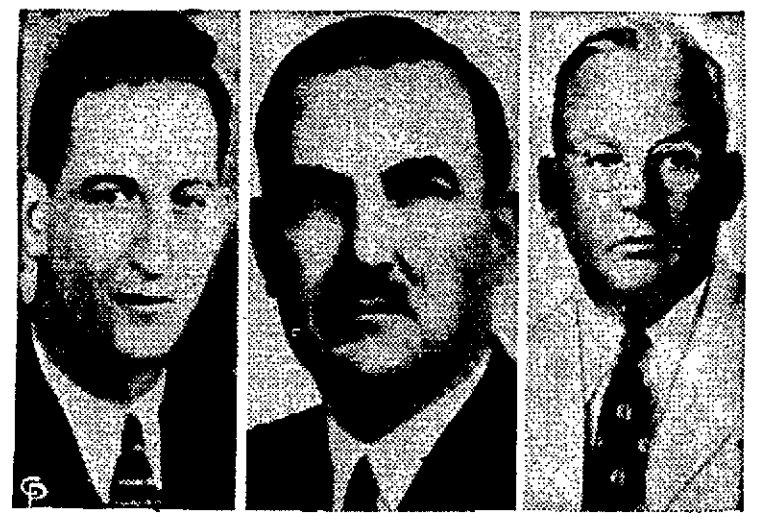

Investigation disclosed the photographer represented an established Ohio trade publication but, nevertheless, the matter was submitted to FBI officials in Cleveland for disposal.

Photographers of defense plants, power plants, water-pumping stations, reservoirs, tank towers and other factors essential to the war effort and the public good are prohibited by the federal government. Mansfield officers charged with sabotage investigations say that sanction of FBI authorities must be obtained before any such photography is attempted.

"Persons observing anyone engaged in taking such pictures," Police Chief Thomas M. Bell urged today, "are asked to correctly determine their auto license number if available, or a complete description of the subject."

SETS UP METAL SALVAGE FUND

Council OK's $3,300 To Pay For Sifting Dump Heaps To Get Valuable Scrap.

In a rapid-fire special session last night Mansfield city council appropriated $3,300 to defray the cost of salvaging scrap metals to be melted into bombs to bowl at the Axis powers.

Through this action WPA workers will start Friday on the task of mining 500 tons or more of junk steel from the city dump on Park avenue east near the sewage disposal plant. The material comprises metal barrels, stoves, refrigerators and other defective products dumped there by Mansfield industries.

Several other small dumps are expected to add considerable to the scrap yield and the $2,500 appropriation provides for the salvaging of all possible sources. Under the legislation, Service Director Fred R. Wolff is empowered to place a steam shovel, maintainer or bulldozer and roller in service.

The remaining $800 was appropriated, also from the city's general fund, to defray the expense of opening pavements on Springhill.

Sentence to Life Imprisonment In Killing of Wife

Apparently unshaken by the jury's verdict of guilty, John Johnson, 42, colored, employee of the Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company for many years, was sentenced to life imprisonment in the Ohio penitentiary today for the slaying of his 25-year-old wife, Mary, on June 17, at her Bowman street home.

Johnson stood with a somber face and without comment as Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston passed sentence shortly before noon today in the grand jury room at the courthouse. The courtroom was being used for another hearing.

Johnson was found guilty of second-degree murder late yesterday by a jury of eight men and four women. The jurors deliberated less than an hour and a half at the end of two-day trial, the first murder trial in Richland county in more than three years.

"The court has only one duty to perform under the circumstances and that is to sentence you to life imprisonment," Judge Huston said. "This demonstrates the importance of this case."

Claim Troops Withdrawn From Russian Front as British Smash Port With 'Block-Buster' Explosives; Reds Pushed Back In Caucasus.

MOSCOW.—(AP)—The Russian defense of the Caucasus showed signs of stiffening today as the steadily reinforced German drive across the lower Don shaped into spearheads toward Kuschchevka, Salsk and the Tikhoretsk-Stalingrad railroad linking the oil fields to central Russia.

British warplanes smashed at Hamburg in another huge-scale assault before dawn today as the crisis in Russia grew more acute and Germany showed fresh concern over the prospect of an Allied invasion of western Europe.

DNB, the German news agency, announced that Nazi SS (Elite Guard) troops moving from the Soviet front to duty with the western command in the occupied countries would march through Paris today.

"They are equipped with new vehicles and new weapons," DNB said.

Dispatches from Bern, Switzerland, quoted German military quarters in Berlin as saying they believed an invasion attempt would be made by the Allies.

Simultaneously, the Berlin radio asserted that more than 200,000 skilled workers "have used a half-million tons of concrete monthly for fortifications along the (English) channel coast."

Still another Nazi-inspired dispatch said the German military commander in Holland had inspected defense installations along the Dutch coast.

Behind all these outward signs of nervousness in Berlin, Allied observers saw two possibilities:

1. Nazi propaganda was trying to conceal a condition of only "skeleton defense" left in western Europe as a result of manpower detailed for use against Russia, thus hoping to bluff the Allies out of an invasion attempt.

2. Germany was genuinely alarmed and was rushing preparations to meet a cross-channel offensive.

Observers contrasted the Berlin claim that Nazi troops were being shifted from Russia back to the channel coast with the most several days ago that 11 German divisions had been sent from France to the Soviet war front.

Whatever the truth, RAF warplanes in great numbers attacked Germany, northern France, Belgium and Holland during the night in a series of "softening up" attacks such as might precede an invasion attempt.

The magnitude of the new assault was suggested by the fact that observers contrasted the Berlin claim that Nazi troops were being shifted from Russia back to the channel coast with the most several days ago that 11 German divisions had been sent from France to the Soviet war front.

REPULSED: Japs Driven Back From Outposts In New Guinea

GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia.—Allied patrols have driven strong and aggressive Japanese units back from advanced outposts they occupied in the vicinity of Kokoda, New Guinea, only 60 miles from the most advanced Allied base at Port Moresby, General MacArthur's headquarters announced today.

From their newly occupied base at Gona mission on the northeastern coast of the Papuan peninsula, the Japanese patrols have advanced 55 miles inland in less than a week and have clashed with Allied patrols near the small government station of Kokoda.

Troops of General MacArthur's command pushed back the invaders yesterday while Allied bombers attacked enemy installations and supply stores at Gona mission.

Kokoda is a small town with an airfield, a rubber plantation and a few buildings.

A headquarters spokesman said it still was uncertain whether the probing action of the Japanese was a mere patrol maneuver or the preliminary advance to an attack on Port Moresby.

A single Japanese plane dropped several bombs on Port Moresby last night.

The spokesman said there was no evidence of reinforcements for the Japanese forces at Gona mission, which originally were estimated to number between 1,500 and 2,500.

A Japanese flying boat attempted to make a third attack on Townsville on the northeast coast of Australia last night, but Allied night fighters intercepted it. The plane was believed destroyed.

Allied bomber units, meanwhile, attacked the airfield in Japanese-occupied Koepang, Dutch Timor, again and scored hits in the target area. Japanese fighter planes attempted to intercept the formation, but the Allied planes accomplished their mission.

SAFE: Big Convoys Traversing Caribbean Unmolested by Subs

ABOARD A U. S. WARSHIP, In the Caribbean Sea on a Recent Date.—(AP)—Great convoys of merchant ships are plowing with relative safety through these once dangerous waters.

United States Navy men are successfully matching wits with and out-manoeuvring undersea marauders that littered the sea with sunken ships in days before convoys began.

This reporter is aboard a swift, hard-hitting warship which escorted the first Caribbean convoy to its destination and is returning with another to a United States port.

Lieut. Comdr. John F. Walsh, former instructor of ordnance at the naval academy and a veteran of foreign service, directed the first convoy as commanding officer of this warcraft. So successfully has he outwitted and out-manoeuvred submarines that not one torpedo has been fired at our fleet of merchantmen despite several skirmishes.

Walsh summed up the new order for Axis raiders by saying: "They may sink ships, but from now on they fight for every one they get."

For tactical reasons of his own Walsh on one occasion ignored one submarine only 30 miles away

Pable from the Fifties: In the lounge of the Ziegfeld theater one afternoon, surrounded by memories of that glamorous era when Flo Ziegfeld was producing the town's gayest hits, a pretty blond girl strolled slowly like one who walks through a museum. She paused longest in front of a picture of Marilyn Miller, and to the casual eye, the girl looking at the picture bore a strong resemblance to the late light-footed dancing star of "Sunny," "Sally," and a dozen other memorable hits.

The sight-seeing young woman was Ann Miller—no relation—in town from Hollywood to play an engagement at the Paramount.

Her visit to the Ziegfeld was something of a pilgrimage, for ever since she was a little girl Ann and her mother have hoped that some day she would be as famous as a dancing lady as Marilyn Miller. Ann's stage name, Miller, was chosen with that in mind, and that was why, eventually, Ann's black hair became golden. The memory of Marilyn's greatness was the bright goal and the driving force during the long years of practice and heartbreak before Ann became a star herself.

In a few weeks, Ann returns to the Coast to make a screen test.

HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD—Another side of

there are many make-up artists who work irregularly and have a tough time of it.

Just as an actor is "typed" for beards, Axelze has been "typed" for beards. This cuts him out of decorating the lot's lovelier personalities, but Axelze always has enjoyed working with beards.

It was through beards that he became a make-up man. Swedish-born, he came to America in 1901 and shortly he was an actor. His first show was "The Shepherd King," a Biblical play and "a very hairy affair." He made himself up to play two or three different roles, and he helped beard other actors. Backstage he would practice make-up on himself. He kept it up after he came to Hollywood, in the silent days when actors relied on each other to splash the greasepaint. His pronounced accent did not do for talking pictures, and that was when his hobby proved his salvation.

EXCEPT for a few tough weeks at the outset of the depression, he has worked steadily since his first make-up job. Making more than many a well-known character actor, he rents a big house in Hollywood and owns a week-end home in Malibu. He has been to Cro's a couple of times, but likes good plain restaurants better. He has seen Garbo often—having worked on a Garbo picture though not on the Garbo make-up. He has been married 32 years to a former actress, and they have two grown daughters.

He gets enough of beards at the studio, and his hobby now is making furniture of old mirrors. He also is inventor of a periscope through which short people may see parades. This is odd only because Carl Axelze himself does not love a parade.

MYSTERY VEILS DEATH OF FLIER ON SEA PATROL

Writer Describes Strange End of Airman Who Never Got Chance to Fight.

(Editor's Note: This is the last of the series of stories telling of the battle of the Aleutians.)

By KEITH WHEELER (Copyright, 1942, Chicago Times) (Distributed By International News Service)

AT SEA WITH THE PACIFIC FLEET—(Delayed)—Six weeks ago I flew a patrol with an observation plane. I took the occasion to remark that, while it wasn't permitted to give the full names of Bill the pilot and Willie the radioman, I wished I could because they had to fly patrols every day and some day might be killed doing it.

Out of ignorance, prophesy speaks. Bill and Willie are dead. On the ship we called Bill the pilot "Ace," partly because of his considerable skill at throwing darts but more because of the great sickness he had.

His sickness was not in his body, for he was tall, muscular and handsome. His sickness was in the heart and the malady was disappointment.

He wanted to fight and the wanting was a fire that consumed him. He wanted, above all the desires of his life, to fly a fighter plane in combat.

With hatred that was almost an obsession, he hated the slow, stumpy, dependable, lightly armed observation plane to which his orders condemned him. He abhorred the monotony of his duty which was dangerous enough but not exciting.

But he was a fine pilot and conscientious. And in that mysterious bourne where the navy's chores are ordered, they felt that his great ability and experience outweighed his wishes.

So day after day he climbed into his plane and flew his uneventful beat over the empty sea and back, endlessly from ship to horizon and beyond the horizon and back to the ship.

He did his work and he did it well. He tried to content himself with planning an attack if ever his monotonous patrol should flush a Japanese ship.

Possibly you do not understand what "planning attack" with an observation plane implies. But you would understand if you knew warship planes, which are called "pigeons" in contempt.

These planes are the underdogs of all naval aviation. They are sluggish and awkward, and they carry only a pair of bean-shooters for defense. The fact that they carry a couple of small bombs is only an underdog's hopeless gesture of defiance.

They were designed for one purpose, an aim having no remote connection with aerial combat. They are extended eyes for the ships, planes that can be depended upon to stand up under the beatings of sea and weather but nothing more. Their great value is their ability to direct the fire of the ship's guns.

Nobody who knows anything about them expects the pigeons to fight. When the enemy is near they are expected to keep as far from trouble as cloud cover or wave-hopping will allow.

But Ace planned attacks. He dreamed of bombing an enemy ship and he believed sincerely that he could get away with it. He even thought, given altitude, skill and the advantage of a few seconds surprise, that he could attack a Jap Zero fighter and win.

And so today he flew his patrol while the radioman with him in the rear seat. They flew out to the east of their sector and started back. On the way they met a plane searching another sector.

Ace signalled the second plane to join up. Something went wrong then, nobody knows what. As the other pilot drew toward him, Ace's plane swerved into a turn, swung sharply around 180 degrees and dove into the sea.

The other pilot landed in the open sea, taxied near the capsized wreckage and, leaving the plane in the hands of his radioman, clambered into the water and tried to reach Ace and Willie under the heaving surface.

He found nothing but a floating glove. The icy water numbed his body so quickly that he could not climb back into his own plane and he was saved only when the radioman, leaving the plane unguided, crawled from the cockpit and pulled him back aboard.

Somebody will have to go to the girl Ace married two months ago and explain to her why his sickness will never be cured and why, perhaps, it doesn't matter now.

CHAPTER XIV

Audrey recalled how Leslie described some of their grim kind of humor. A freak explosion had blown a man through some windows. His neighbors had said of him, "Guess he was awfully tired of cleaning them."

Leslie had said he used to laugh at the sight of the thrushes and sparrows standing on the branches, still paralyzed with shell shock. "You could walk up and catch them with your bare hands," he had said.

Now she heard one of the boys singing: And we'll nail the Union Jack To Adolf Hitler's scrawny back When we bomb Berlin, in the morning.

Leslie wasn't listening, but looking up at her. Observing his warm and wondering glance, she felt that in the tragic debris of Leslie's life he had found something precious, his young love for her. He was reaching out for her like the young plants were reaching for the sunlight. He would cling, she knew, for she was all that he had left and she must be warm, and sure and steady.

"Dear God," she thought, "let me be that for him, and these children."

That was what she whispered again to herself, that night, when she lay awake high on soft pillows looking through the window far out on the Sound, where the moon bathed her face in silver. Her young pliant body was restless under silk, wanting the caress of warm, strong arms.

Suddenly at the foot of her bed Boris growled. There was a faint shuffling sound from the hall. Audrey looked toward the door, got up and opened it quickly. The hall was empty, but on the threshold of the door was a note.

She tore the envelope, unfolded the paper, carried it to her bedside light. The note was printed, signed with an ivy green spot and marked, "The Green Hand."

The note read: "Unless Boris is removed from the household, at once, I will kidnap the hound. Act quickly or expect the worst. Most sincerely, the Green Hand."

Audrey smiled. She recognized Leslie's handwriting, turned out the light.

She breakfasted with all the children the next morning—in the solarium of the east wing, seated at the head of their table like Mother Hubbard with her 15 children in a shoe.

A babble of bubbly talk, it was, mixed with the tinkle of spoons and gurgles of delight. They nibbled last crusts of toasts—waiting for her to rise.

"I have just a word to say first, my dears, before I dismiss you," they stared, silent as stars.

"Someone of you wrote me an anonymous note and slipped it under my door last night. I want the writer of the note to come to me at once!"

There was no fidgeting—only quiet bewilderment. The girls turned to their breakfast partners at their left. The boys looked at each other, signalled, as though all were preparing to speak in a chorus.

Their chairs moved back, they were ready to rise in a body. But one was quicker. He said, "Thanks awfully, fellows, but it's quite all right."

"Mrs. Blake," Leslie said, "I wrote the note. I am at your service."

"Then I wish you to remain,"

Audrey said severely. "You all may go."

The other boys rose, helped the girls from their chairs. They filed out, occasionally looked back at Audrey and Leslie.

"Why did you do it, Leslie?" she asked when they were alone.

Leslie told her falteringly that the wolfhound hated him, and he hated the wolfhound, confessed he was blunt about it, but that was the way he felt.

"But you mustn't hate; you must have been taught that."

"Long ago," he answered. "It's different now."

"But Leslie, you could have avoided Boris. We all can avoid things we dislike."

"But that's not good," he answered. "I couldn't avoid him, or anything else. We can't avoid anything."

"Then you'd have him taken away?"

"Yes, Mrs. Blake." "And killed him?"

He hesitated, then said, "If necessary."

She sat back shocked. "You're so young, Leslie."

"I'm 13, Mrs. Blake."

She was going to pass that off primly with "Yes, I know," but didn't. He was more than 13; lives and deaths and bombings older.

He saw the questions in her eyes and went on, "I tried to be pleasant and fair. Boris wasn't. I don't trust him; he'd bite me if he had the chance."

"I can't agree with that, Leslie. There will be a punishment. Leslie, I shall put the safety of Boris in your hands. It will be your duty to take him for a walk once a day on the beach."

"Very well," he said stiffly. "I'll take him. But he'll tear me to bits." He stood at the door until she left the room before him.

How he managed with Boris for the next two days she did not know, for she did not see them immediately before or after their walks. However, she did see Leslie leash Boris on the third day, and knew the other two days must have been hateful to them both.

She could see, from where she was standing on the lawn, that the dog was sullen; slunked as he was dragged on its haunches.

She felt a twinge of regret at the task she had given Leslie, because she realized Boris never had liked a leash, and would hate it when it was fastened by Leslie. Yet she knew the dog and his devotion to people he guarded.

She watched Leslie try to drag the dog. Boris merely stood firm and glared at him; but Leslie held to the leash and continued pulling, and finally Boris decided he'd go, and Leslie got away with the dog. They disappeared at a bend in the bridge path.

Leslie pulled the dog along for an eighth of a mile of the path, patiently, ploddingly until the hound deliberately twisted the leash between Leslie's legs, and Leslie went down.

"You beast!" he muttered between clenched teeth. He thought then how simple it would be to unleash the dog and let him run away to freedom and a new home—anywhere so long as he stayed away from Moonhollow and Mrs. Blake.

He drew in the slack of the leash, and unspooled the clasp. Boris was surprised. He moved about slowly, then feeling freedom, bounded off.

By Maurlee DeKobra and Jessie Ernst Copyright, 1942.)

Leslie jumped to his feet, regretting his impulse. "Boris, come here! I made a mistake," he called sharply. "Come back—do you hear?"

But Boris apparently had taken his release seriously and beat it off to the north.

That was away from the house, as Leslie knew. He followed, running. After a few minutes he stopped.

He knew he had done wrong. As far as the dog was concerned it didn't matter. But Mrs. Blake—that was different. She had made a special point of Boris to him; and he had proved untrustworthy. She wouldn't love him any longer.

He stood still at the thought of that, recalling the graciousness of her that had warmed his heart that had been so chilled in him since the night of the great bombing in England. Leslie knew that as a gentleman who had been ungrateful he must go away from Moonhollow.

He didn't actually run away; the terrain wasn't fit for that. He walked despondently further along the path, still headed north.

He walked through a wood, which covered the sloping hillside very much as it pleased. Various sizes and styles of trees were there, and most of the trees were a glowing green. Among them were so many taller fir and pine trees as to tinge whole sections of the hill with their deep, shiny green.

The path that Leslie slowly climbed, swinging a branch sadly behind him as he walked, zig-zagged leisurely among the trees and brush. Leslie had more than once gone on country picnics, in the days when his mother used to spend a good part of her summer in Devonshire, and the memory of those days, and of his mother and pater and of their ways, stuck bitterly in his mind.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, WEDNESDAY, JULY 29, 1942.

Purposes of New War Industries Board

A CLEAR outline of purposes has been set forth in the initial statement made yesterday by the newly-organized war industry board which is designed to serve the interests of Mansfield to the fullest possible extent, now and as far into the unpredictable future as may be deemed advisable.

Recognition of urgent need for such a central group specifically charged with responsibility in co-ordinating Mansfield's industrial co-operation in the national war effort and also in safeguarding and promoting this city's present and future welfare, was followed by speedy action.

Strongest possible emphasis is being given to the fact that this war industry board is to be representative of Mansfield as a whole—and this is as it should be, for every resident of Mansfield, in whatever capacity he may serve, is vitally concerned in present progress and future prospects of this fine community.

First in importance, of course, is assurance that no steps have been overlooked which may make possible a further local industrial contribution to the national war effort—as winning the war must take dominance over all other considerations.

This is not only stressed in the statement of the new board but has also been fully realized by every thoughtful citizen.

A part of the statement which reveals the broad scope of intended board activities follows:

"The co-operation of every organization and individual is earnestly solicited. Especially do we desire that the labor organizations join us in all our efforts. Everyone with a suggestion must feel free to come forward with it. . . . The committee desires to be looked upon as a clearing house and will be open at all times for suggestions and ideas. . . . The committee is undertaking this work in an unselfish manner—no one desires any recognition or reward—it is for the general welfare of the community."

From the vantage point of a long backward look over Mansfield's many progressive steps—and the impelling forces which have made this an outstanding city in its population class—there is justification for confident prediction that Mansfield has now reached another of its "turning points," from which there will be a steady upward climb.

Cleaning Up Disease-Breeding Spots

EVIDENCE of police vigilance in co-operating with the federal government's effort to stamp out disease-breeding houses of prostitution in areas in the vicinity of military training camps and war industry centers, is being seen in Mansfield, with every indication that Police Chief Bell is determined to make a thorough job of the clean-up.

It is gratifying to note that a survey made here by secret operatives of the FBI resulted in this area being given a "clean bill of health," insofar as past tolerance of a segregated vice district is concerned, and it is now only a scattering of prostitutes through residence sections, or clandestine operation of disorderly houses outside the city, that requires attention by the police department and sheriff's office.

In asking public co-operation in weeding out commercialized prostitution from residential parts of the city Police Chief Bell assures informants that no publicity will be given to reports of suspected violations.

Diseases developed from this source have caused such a high percentage of incapacity in connection with the war effort that the government is determined to carry through a drastic campaign of elimination, in which the active help of local law enforcement agencies and the public is necessary.

Gene Ozier Coming Back Home

RETURN of an "Ozier" to residence in Mansfield will be welcomed by many to whom the name was familiar in earlier years.

Announcement that "Gene" Ozier—best remembered as a boy around the Vohhof hotel, of which his father, Charles Ozier, was manager—is to come back home as manager of the Mansfield-Leland hotel, was well received by Mansfielders whose memory extends back to the days of "Charlie" Ozier and his brother Fred, or even further back to the pioneer period in which their father, Nelson Ozier, was active in local affairs and once postmaster.

Friends have heard, from time to time, of the younger Ozier's success in hotel operations in Chicago, and are glad to learn that he and his family are soon to be back in this city.

Wash Raw Fruit Before Eating

THE TIME of year is approaching when the dread poliomyelitis begins to show up with a high number of cases. Some years the situation verges on epidemic.

The more physicians study this disease, the more they are inclined to advise people to wash off all fruit skins carefully before the fruits are eaten. It is just possible, they say, that the cause of the disease—be it germ, virus, wild yeast or whatever—lives or is carried on the skins of fruits.

This is a precaution which can do no harm in any case. The skins of many fruits are in themselves difficult to digest—some plums are in this class. Also, now that so much fruit is sprayed for its protection while ripening, it may be that bits of the sprays themselves linger on the skins. In small quantity these might not be very harmful—but the small boy and girl are not always self-controlled in this matter, to put it mildly. If they are brought up from the beginning to wash, or at least carefully wipe, all fruits which are eaten skin and all, the cleansing process becomes a habit.

Past Extremes Forgotten

A DISCOVERY has been made by E. L. Wells, an Oregon weather forecaster. "People always believe," he says, "that the present weather is more extreme, in one direction or another, than any which preceded it."

Mr. Wells has uttered a profound truth, and one not limited to weather alone. We generally think that whatever is happening, good or bad—but mostly bad—is more extreme than anyone else has ever experienced. The personal experience of the moment is so vivid that it dims recollection of anything like it in the past.

SERGEANT YORK IN REVERSE

Women In Industry Bring Problem

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—Women in industry is a theme worrying many thinkers and planners for that hoped for period "after the war." Women are already playing a much greater part in the war effort than most people realize. In a large plant in Chicago, recently converted from peace to war production, 85 per cent of the employees are women. The head of the corporation operating this plant told the writer that he found women on the average to be more efficient than men! He also said he was using some women on drill presses. The question which is being raised by the after-the-war planners is how to get the women back in the home when peace comes, especially those who are more efficient than men. The manager of any given plant may be declined to replace women with men. The profit motive will be working against that.

WHILE most of the after-the-war planners are worrying about this as an economic question, it is pointed out by a minority that it is really a social, but not an economic question. They reason this way—every woman who is a wage earner will have buying power. Hence she will purchase goods which in turn will provide employment for others.

Carrying this one step farther, the more wage earners there are, the more jobs there are.

The social problem is something else again. Women working in factories are not as likely to be making homes as women working in offices. When it comes to bringing up families the same thing is true, for Washington government work abounds with mothers who are working at their desks again after comparatively short periods of time out when their babies were born.

So far as the war is concerned the use of women in industry is so important that it cannot be exaggerated. Women can be trained very quickly to the types of work, which, it had always been assumed, required years of training.

THE TRUTH is that this goes for men too, though women learn comparatively simple mechanical operations demanding constant repetition more easily and more quickly than men. But men have been turned into expert die makers in seven weeks, under the strain of war production, whereas it was considered before the war that it took seven years to make a good die maker.

The reader can imagine some of the reasons why a seven-years' training period was held to be necessary. The important thing is not why it was, but that the strain of war has shown it to be unnecessary.

A prominent Western manufacturer, here to consult government officials about his contract, offered to enter die makers he had developed in a seven-weeks' training period against any in the world. Before the seven-weeks' training period, he said, these men were regarded as "just fair" mechanics. However, he admits that he picked with great care those he had trained for die makers.

On the record and off, the Massachusetts Republican Senator has had a lot to say about the performance of American tanks, desert warfare, the Nazis' 88-mm anti-tank gun, and the sly strategy of that wild desert rat, Rommel.

Even his on-the-record comments have been most revealing and what he had to report to the war department must have been just a shade short of sensational.

Still, the senator's military observations are just a minor flurry compared to the political whirlwind he has kicked up.

TODAY IN HISTORY

This date in 1868 marked the first day of ratification of Amendment XIV to the Constitution of the United States declaring all persons born or naturalized in the United States to be citizens of the United States and the state wherein they reside, and forbade any state to deprive them of privilege as citizens. The amendment also provided for apportionment of representatives in congress, and provided a fair basis for the reconstruction of the southern states.

Axis Design for Post-War World Spurs Allies to Greater Effort

—By DE WITT MACKENZIE

AS THE great battle for the Caucasus swells to the peak of the crisis upon which the outcome of the war may depend, and Allied fortunes swing precariously in the balance, providence has spurred us to renewed efforts by making further disclosures of the extent of the Nazi and Japanese designs upon the freedom of the world.

In one instance we have the German government broadcasting that Japanese Prime Minister Tojo declared in a public speech "Japan is determined to destroy the United States and Great Britain." When Tojo talks of destroying the two great western powers he of course refers to destruction of their sovereignty.

A better picture of what this means comes from the current disclosures by American newspapermen repatriated from Japan. The treatment they reveal, coupled with previous authenticated reports of atrocities against prisoners, and the literal enslavement of hundreds of thousands of conquered Chinese, do not leave much room for doubt as to what our fate would be if Japan won this war.

Even more illuminating and shocking is the information contained in documents found on captured German prisoners in Libya.

These documents depict a world in which the conquered nations are to be permanently deprived of their freedom. They are to be made vassals of Germany. Hitler's statement recognizes that these vanquished peoples wouldn't be "well disposed to the reich" and he therefore has made provision for the creation of a vast police force of elite guard (S. S.) soldiers who would wield the lash over the unhappy bondsmen.

What a difference between this Axis projected world, in which Christianity would be killed if possible, and the recent pronouncements from Secretary of State Cordell Hull and British Foreign Secretary Eden, reaffirming the purpose of the United Nations to create a new world of freedom, equality and brotherly love!

Second Front Awaits Russia's SOS

—By LOUIS F. KEEMLE

THE EXTENT of Germany's gains in Russia during the coming month is likely to determine whether the Allies will open a second front in Europe before the end of this year.

The Germans have taken Rostov, as had been expected, and the Russians are making a stand south of the Don. To the east, the Germans are pressing close to the great bend of the Don before Stalingrad and the test of strength in the 50-mile area between the Don and Volga is about at hand.

Unless the Germans take the North Caucasus oil fields, territorial gains for the present are not nearly so important as the strength and holding power of the Russian army.

Occupation of the north Caucasus would be a serious loss to Russia and a tangible asset to Germany in the oil which they would get. It also probably would entail the smashing of Marshal Semyon Timoshenko's Caucasus army.

But if the Russians hold through August and enter September with their armies and equipment still reasonably intact, there would be ground for hoping that Hitler can be held until another winter comes to bog down his mechanized juggernaut.

THE relation of these considerations to a second front is apparent. There can be little doubt that a second front has been decided upon. There is reason to believe, however, that the high commands of Britain and the United States have decided, and have so advised Russia, that its chances of success are doubtful if undertaken immediately.

The clamor for a second front comes from the public, which is not in a position to know the military state of affairs.

Russia officially, so far as we know, has made no demand for it. When Ambassador Maxim Litvinov saw President Roosevelt the other day, there were reports that he called for the prompt opening of a front in Europe.

The Russian position is critical but not yet desperate. Should it become desperate in ensuing weeks, it is not improbable that Moscow would send the SOS and the second front plans would be advanced because of the critical necessity of keeping Russia in the war.

BESIDES the enormous problem of shipping and supply, air strength is a dominant factor in deciding the second front question. The British are superior in the western air but not yet dominant. The aerial "second front" which was foreseen with the first of the 1,000-plane raids over Germany has not yet materialized. Such raids at the 600-plane attack on Hamburg Sunday night are not as frequent as had been hoped.

The fact that Germany used only 50 to 70 planes in latest raids over Britain is not necessarily an indication of German strength—or weakness. The Germans are believed to have a backlog of 5,000 to 7,000 planes kept in reserve for either defense or offensive if the time comes.

Timely Editorial

A Material Comeback.

Plywood is currently furnishing an example of how materials as well as men stage comebacks. In the earlier days of American commercial aviation of the old tri-motor Fokker was borne on a plywood wing, and even earlier it was an occasional substance for fuselages.

When aluminum alloys and stainless steel came in, though, plywood went out to the aircraft world along with a considerable part of the fabric construction. Now, under the impetus of war and need for aluminum conservation, it suddenly turns out that the plywood industry is one of aviation's most valuable adjuncts.

By employing plywood, North American Aviation estimates that it is saving some 250 pounds of aluminum in each combat trainer it builds. Curtiss-Wright recently announced a twin-engine cargo planes of about the size of the standard Douglas airliner to be built entirely of plywood.—Akron Beacon-Journal.

A Farmer's Diary

Water Problem

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

LATE last fall, I passed a farmer who was hauling water for his stock. He lived in a low, narrow valley where the city, some 12 miles north, had sunk five deep water wells. A creek flowed along his line fence, and now, with buckets, he dipped up water from deep standing pools and poured it into two barrels on his drag.

"I do this twice each day," he answered my query. "It means two hours extra work—cool, disagreeable work, too. When I bought this place, there was no water here, and there was a never-failing spring yonder in the pasture. The man I bought from had lived here 60 years. I supposed he knew."

"The first year or two I was here, it was as he said. Then my neighbor up on the hill went broke and sold off the timber and cleared the land. Now when a storm comes, or winter snow melts, the water comes dashing down, like off a steep roof, and even closes the road. The ground is hard up on them ridges, and ought never to be used for farming. I told him that one day, but he said it shouldn't make me any difference what he did."

"But as I see it, it's made the difference between my spring flowing and going dry. Then there's those wells. They're deep and they pump every night. It wouldn't seem that they'd do us any harm, on the farm, but after they began pumping, our well got lower and lower and two years ago it went dry, from late summer until after Christmas."

"I guess they lowered the water table, and in dry times, that drained the water from all the upper ground. What can anybody do about it, would you say?"

"Necessity will do wonderful things," I told him. "In Ohio 319 out of 410 city water systems are operated from driven wells. It looks like cities and farmers will have to get together and plant trees to get rid of water, or soon to be so, in order to keep the water table from diminishing. On land that produces a profit, terracing and strip farming will help to hold and keep every drop of water long enough for it to soak into the soil. Our future will pass, if we do not conserve in the present."

RAF SCOURGES HAMBURG WITH BOMB ATTACK

sault on Hamburg—the second in three nights—was emphasized by the British air ministry's acknowledgment that 32 bombers were missing; three more than were lost in Sunday night's 600-plane attack on the German U-boat nest.

An RAF communiqué said the raiders, some of which dropped two-ton "block-smasher" bombs, left great fires raging in the port already partly burned out by Sunday night's hail of 175,000 incendiaries.

The attack followed within a few hours after Britain's Air Marshal Sir Arthur T. Harris broadcast to Germany a warning of gigantic new blows to come.

"All that has happened so far will seem very little," Sir Arthur said. "You have no chance . . . soon we shall be coming every night and every day . . . rain, blow or storm—we and the Americans."

On the Russian front, Adolf Hitler's armored columns knifed deeper into the Caucasus in a drive from Rostov, racing over a countryside described by the Russians as "flat as a billiard table . . . ideal for tank operations."

Soviet dispatches said the Germans were striking toward Kuchevka, 45 miles due south of Rostov, on a route paralleling the Rostov-Baku railway and oil pipeline, but declared the invaders were suffering bloody losses.

"Our men are displaying stubborn resistance to the attacking enemy," the Soviet command said. A single Russian infantry force was credited with wiping out 10,800 Germans in 10 days of fighting at Voronezh on the upper Don, the scene of the original push in Hitler's grand offensive. Here, at least, the Russians appeared to be slightly more than holding their own.

In a bulletin from Hitler's field headquarters said German troops had thrown back stubbornly resisting Russians on the lower Don front and had crossed the Manyov and Sal rivers, which thrust southward into the Caucasus.

Heavy fighting was also reported raging within 50 miles of Stalingrad, big Volga river industrial city, and the Rome radio asserted that German artillery was already bombarding the river port.

A Nazi communiqué said Russian resistance had been broken at several points northwest of Kalach, 50 miles west of Stalingrad, and asserted that the Russians were retreating.

On the Egyptian front, British and Axis patrols sparred cautiously while back and presumably American heavy bombers attacked the vital Axis supply port of Suda Bay, Crete, a major source of supplies to the Axis armies in North Africa.

Other world-wide developments: Sea Warfare—The British admiralty estimated that a grand total of 7,184,760 tons of German and Italian shipping had been sunk, captured, damaged or interned, exclusive of United States actions, since the outbreak of the war.

The admiralty said Britain and her European allies alone, not counting Russia, had sunk, captured or damaged 953,581 tons of Axis shipping since the first of the year.

Drop Leaflets On Leningrad

MOSCOW.—(AP)—The Germans dropped leaflets over Leningrad today, declaring they soon would storm the city, which was first placed under siege early last August.

(One object of such a threat would be to immobilize any surplus defense troops which might be available for transfer to the active battle zones to the south.)

Report Stalingrad Under Nazi Fire

ROME (From Italian Broadcasts).—(AP)—The Rome radio declared today that Stalingrad, Russian industrial center on the lower Volga, had been placed under fire from heavy German guns.

(Berlin quarters had not reported a bombardment of Stalingrad and Russian reports indicated the invaders were still engaged within the big bend of the Don, which at its closest point is from 45 to 50 miles west of Stalingrad.)

Allies Smash Again At Axis Shipping

CAIRO.—(AP)—A force of heavy Allied bombers again has severely battered Axis shipping in Suda Bay, off the German-held island of Crete, the British Middle East high command announced today.

Planes of the United States army air corps under command of Maj. Gen. Lewis H. Brereton participated in the previous assault against Crete last week and mention of "Allied" bombers in today's communiqué was taken to mean that American fliers again took part.

The raid on the enemy Mediterranean base was carried out at dusk, the high command said. Land operation on the desert battle front west of El Alamein, the British command said, were confined yesterday to routine patrol.

There was some artillery action on the northern sector. The communiqué said that air activity was conducted on a reduced scale over the battle area.

Official sources disclosed meanwhile that American bombers firemen under Captain Paul Young. Baffled by dense smoke which filled the entire home, they confined the fire to the closet and children's room.

Woodwork throughout the dwelling was blistered by heat and walls were damaged badly by smoke, Mrs. Slabaugh said.

The Slabaugh children, Ann and Priscilla, had gone to a neighbor's home a few minutes before Mrs. Slabaugh discovered flames lapping through the closet door. Immediately after summoning the fire department she called to Hout and a lawn laborer he employed. They fought the flames and later aided firemen.

TELLS OF RADIO STATION LOANS

jam because they have filed an application for a license and need money badly."

"Didn't Mr. Rubin expect to make something out of the deal?" Harris asked.

"Nothing, except on his loan," Dunigan testified.

Testimony yesterday brought out that the three incorporators obtained approximately $17,000 from Rubin on notes, gave company stock as security, placed the money in a Mansfield bank with enough more to make about $20,000, and represented that amount as their financial backing when they went to Washington for a license.

Weimer admitted on the stand yesterday that a report falsely showing that amount was still in the bank was filed with the FCC later when the corporation actually had only $41 in the bank.

Dunigan testified that he changed the wording on the three notes Satterlee, Weimer, and Kessel had given Rubin when he learned from Washington that the firm's capital stock could not be given as collateral for the loans.

Questioned by Harris concerning a check he had made out for Satterlee, Weimer, and Kessel to draw the money they had borrowed from Rubin out of the Mansfield bank, Dunigan said he knew the procedure was "improper" but he couldn't do anything about it. He said he didn't think any of them would sign the check to withdraw the money from a special fund that had been set up.

Satterlee and Weimer testified yesterday that the money they had borrowed from Rubin to present to the FCC as financial backing for their proposed station was withdrawn from the bank and paid back to Rubin because he insisted on getting his money at the end of 90 days. The withdrawal left the firm with only a few dollars, testimony showed.

Meanwhile, the application for a license was pending in Washington and when the license was finally granted several months later, the firm had only $41 in the bank, Weimer admitted.

Dunigan this morning produced a book of stock certificates which he had torn into strips, he said, in an attempt to destroy it. He said he didn't know where it came from, but he knew it wasn't needed.

Two other books of stock certificates also were brought into the hearing. Dunigan said he had been holding all of them because "there was antagonism in the air between Mr. Rubin and Satterlee, Weimer, and Kessel, and I held onto everything to see what would happen."

Dunigan admitted under cross-questioning that he had been representing both Rubin and Richland, Inc., during the time the corporation was being formed and after the station was on the air.

Testifying yesterday afternoon, Dunigan said he became "thoroughly disgusted with the whole thing" when he learned that officers of the corporation planned to pay Rubin off with the same money he had loaned them to give the firm financial responsibility when the application for a license was heard in Washington.

He said he told Rubin then that he was accepting company money, leaving the stock unpaid for.

"I decided I would hold the stock in Cleveland until it was paid for," he said.

Testimony that Dunigan was holding the stock was given previously by George Satterlee, former president of the company, as the reason officers of the firm had planned to issue new stock certificates.

Dunigan testified that he went to see Rubin in March, 1940, when Rubin was ill in a Cleveland hospital.

posed offender and immediately notify police. Names of informants will not be disclosed.

Recently a woman residing near a defense plant observed a man with a large camera taking pictures of the plant but neglected to report it for several days, sabotage squad members said.

Two similar situations have been related to the investigators in the last two weeks.

"License numbers and their state of issue, type and color of the car, direction of travel, and a description of any occupants are facts we want," a squad member explained. He also emphasized the value of immediate reports of suspected violations.

Photographs of war industries, water and power plants are considered as being of material value to possible saboteurs.

pital, and at that time Rubin told him officers of Richland, Inc., (Satterlee, Weimer, and Kessel) had promised to pay him back $11,000 he had loaned them for station construction and to get it operating. He said Rubin told him he hadn't received the money as agreed, and he asked Dunigan to go to Mansfield to see what he could do about getting the thing settled. He said Rubin also asked him to see if the company wanted to sell the station.

Dunigan said he saw Satterlee and Kessel and they told him they didn't intend to pay Rubin all he was asking for materials and equipment he had furnished. There was a complaint, they said, about two pianos Rubin had sent down for the studios. Satterlee and Kessel contended the instruments were defective and they didn't want them, Dunigan added.

Attempts had been made about that time to sell the station's controlling interest to W. M. O'Neil in Akron, but he had told them he had only $15,000 available which was not enough to buy it.

Dunigan said he was instructed then to offer the stock to R. B. Gardner in Mansfield, who was interested in the station, but Gardner flatly refused to purchase it.

Rubin then decided to buy Satterlee's 93 shares on an 18-month credit basis and the deal was completed, subject to FCC approval. Dunigan said the agreement also included the provision that Rubin advance the corporation $5,000 to meet current operating costs.

Called back to the stand yesterday afternoon, Satterlee said he wanted to sell his stock and get out of the company in the spring of 1940 "because all of us (the stockholders) were scraping up all we could get to meet operating expenses and I was going into debt."

He said he ultimately sold his holdings to Rubin for $19,900, which included $18,500 for his investment and $1,400 for services with the firm. He estimated that he had invested nearly $12,000 in the station from the beginning.

In reply to a question from Harris, the FCC attorney, Satterlee said Rubin was often referred to by employees of the station as "the great white father in Cleveland" even before he purchased any stock in the station.

BEING CURBED

Mobile Prostitution Units Are Checked By U. S., State.

COLUMBUS.—(AP)—Organized vice rings operating mobile prostitution units in Ohio were reported "slightly curbed" today as the federal and state governments campaigned to eliminate vice where it affects the war effort.

The state health department said that international vice organizations, sponsoring large numbers of "trailer prostitutes" who travel from war industry centers to military encampments, had been cleaned out in some areas.

State selective service headquarters reported that the effect of organized vice was showing up not only among war workers but among men being drafted for army service. Thousands of Ohioans already have been rejected for general enlistments.

field and L. N. Hoffman of Shelby. The organization that will in the future be known as "The Community and War Chests of Mansfield and Richland county," will be incorporated as such through action taken by the organization.

A committee composed of John Routzon, chairman, George L. Draffan and Robert C. Reiny, was authorized to proceed with the incorporation following their report on the advisability of such a step made to the organization last night. Atty. J. H. Gongwer will handle the incorporation proceedings.

Under the code of operations, the organization will operate as two units, the Mansfield Community Fund and the Richland County War Chest. The Community Fund will continue to operate under its own constitution and determine its own budget. According to the code it will "receive its portion of funds only from cash and pledges from Mansfield and sources outside Mansfield that have contributed to the Community Fund in the past."

The Richland County War Chest will be composed of the agencies admitted as participants will be governed by the newly adopted code of regulations.

No applicant will be considered or admitted to the War Chest that does not conform to the standards set by the National Information bureau and all agencies accepted are restricted from soliciting funds. They may however accept unsolicited voluntary contributions and these must be reported to the War Chest.

The total amount paid to any national or foreign agency by the War Chest in no event is to exceed .00071 of the current annual budget of the agency. This figure represents Richland county's portion of the national wealth of the United States. It was determined by dividing the total of the assessed valuation of Richland county real estate, utilities and personal property into the national quota.

Participants in the War Chest must agree that any direct contribution from Mansfield and Richland county to such agencies will be reported to the War Chest and credited towards the quota of Richland county. This includes Richland county's share of contributions received direct by these agencies from national corporations with branches in Mansfield.

The War Chest will not permit bazaars, entertainments or any other money-raising effort or any commercial undertaking for its benefit and this same rule also applies to the participating agencies unless special permission is obtained from the executive committee.

When the budgets of the participating agencies have been determined the executive committee will set a goal for each annual fund raising campaign, including a reasonable amount for campaign expenses, an adequate contingency fund and an adequate shrinkage fund. The War Chest executive committee will also determine quotas for the various subdivisions in Richland county.

In the event any annual goal is not reached and there is a shortage of funds the executive committee will revise the quotas of the participants in the War Chest, giving preferred consideration to those agencies that serve this community or the people of the United States. The executive committee of the Mansfield Community Fund shall cooperate to accomplish an equitable distribution of the available funds.

Should a campaign produce more than the goal, the excess funds shall be put in a reserve fund to be used by the executive committee of the War Chest and Community Fund shall determine. The full resources of the Mansfield Community Fund will be placed at the disposal of the War Chest without cost to the latter, except campaign costs.

The following persons will serve as trustees of the War Chest organization until the first annual meeting in January.

Harold Arlin, Mrs. H. L. Ackerman, Michael Augustine, Donald S. Black, Harry S. Black, Allen Bond, H. G. Brunner, A. E. Courtney, R. M. Calene, John W. Cook, J. M. Cousins, George L. ance of developing self-control. Too many colored people are inclined to use deadly weapons on the spur of the moment," Judge Huston added.

He told Johnson that the length of time he is in the penitentiary depends largely upon his conduct there and asserted that the court would not stand in the way of his parole if John's conduct is satisfactory. Life imprisonment is the maximum for a second-degree murder conviction.

Johnson was found guilty of stabbing his wife eight times with a pocket knife after going to her home in an attempt to effect a reconciliation. They had been living apart. He testified yesterday that she told him she was going to get a divorce and that he lost his head.

A number of friends and co-workers of Johnson testified during the trial that his reputation was good and he had never been in any trouble before. His counsel, Attorney George Biddle, cited that fact in his plea to the jury and added that "not every killing is a responsible killing."

Assistant Prosecutor Charles Freehafer gave the opening plea to the jury for the state and Acting Prosecutor John C. O'Donnell delivered the closing appeal in behalf of the prosecution.

Lieut. George N. Hagerman of Richmond, Va., flushed a submarine by deciding that an attack could be expected from a certain quarter if an Axis craft was in the vicinity. Factors that led to his decision cannot be related, but locating devices responded. The ship went into action with its depth charges.

Officers do not claim to have sunk or even damaged a submarine in any of the attacks. They do claim that the enemy was driven away and our two convoys plowed safely through once dangerous waters.

BE IT RESOLVED that the Mansfield Retail Merchants Association as the qualified representatives of the city's retail interests, formally recognize the War Industry Board for the purposes for which it has been established and extend to said board its pledge for whole-hearted support and best wishes for success and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that said War Industry Board be duly informed of this action by virtue of a written copy of this resolution directed to the chairman thereof and that it be an accepted part of this resolution that the Retail Merchants association accept their responsibility to participate in a material way in supporting the War Industry Board's activities.

Members of the board of the Retail Merchants' association are President Merle Pecht, William Ross, J. A. Herbert, Carl O. Russell, John W. Graham, Ray M. Calene, C. H. Saylor, Charles Siegenthaler and L. A. Ott. V. H. Lodde is secretary.

TALKS ON STEEL PAY RAISE SET

CIO Will Place Demand Before U. S. Subsidiaries.

PITTSBURGH.—(AP)—Negotiations will open here Friday on the demand of the CIO United Steel Workers of America for a 44-cents-a-day wage increase for approximately 250,000 workers employed by five subsidiary companies of United States Steel Corporation.

The union will ask "Big Steel" for the same concessions granted it by the war labor board in the "Little Steel" companies of Inland Steel; Bethlehem, Republic and Youngstown Sheet and Tube Co.

The U. S. Steel subsidiaries scheduled to meet with the USWA representatives are Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corp.; National Tube Co.; American Steel and Wire Co.; Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Co., Birmingham, Ala., and Columbia Steel, of San Francisco.

TALK BETTMAN SUCCESSOR COLUMBUS.—(AP)—Republican state central and executive committees will discuss next Monday the supreme court vacancy created by the death of Gilbert Bettman of Cincinnati. Gov. John W. Bricker has indicated he would not appoint a successor before the Aug. 11 primary.

STYMIED

IRONTON, O.—(AP) There's a law against women wearing slacks in this Ohio river city, but city Manager Ralph Mittendorf doesn't know what to do about it.

He found an old city ordinance, passed in 1888, which provides a $50 fine for women who appear on the streets in male attire. In case the men-folk should want to get even by appearing in feminine dress, the law covers that too.

"But how can you enforce such a law in these days?" Mittendorf wonders.

The Taman peninsula is the northwestern limit of the Caucasus mountain range.

MITCHELL TENT HAS BUSINESS MEETING

New Flag Code, Passed By Congress, Approved By F. D. R., Is Read By Mrs. Cochran; Picnic In October.

AN IMPORTANT business meeting was held by the Mary B. Mitchell Tent, No. 40, Daughters of Union Veterans, in Memorial hall Monday. Mrs. Marguerite Fair presided. The departmental general orders No. 1 were read by Mrs. Alice Hunter, secretary. In the orders Mrs. Bertha Droz was appointed chairman of the budget committee and Mrs. Della Cochran, chairman of the legislative committee.

For Good Health You Must Have Water Balance

If you find it difficult to drink the six to eight glasses of water daily that health experts recommend, why not work out a simple schedule, such as the one Dr. L. Jean Bogert, professor of food economics and nutrition at the Kansas State Agricultural college, suggests?

Drink one or two glasses of water on rising and one before or with each meal. It is advised. A glass at mid-morning and another at mid-afternoon will furnish the remainder of the body's daily liquid requirements.

You don't like water? There are a number of ways in which the body gets water, mainly by fluids ingested through water, beverages, and soups, water contained in solid foods, and the water produced in the metabolic processes of the body. To make keeping your water balance at the proper level more pleasant, drink a different beverage in the morning and afternoon. Try a bottle of carbonated beverage.

Soft drinks are pure and wholesome; the flavor tangy and refreshing. Fruit juices offer another way to obtain the liquid your body needs. And the human body does need it.

Water is the principal constituent of active living organisms. The body requires water for digestive fluids and for the absorption of foods. It is essential for transporting soluble substances in the blood and lymph, and to keep salts in proper dilution. Water also plays an important role in regulating body temperature through evaporation.

If you realize how much liquid the body must have for various life processes and that from two to two and one-half quarts of water is lost daily, it is easy to understand why drinking sufficient water and other beverages is vital. Make a habit of stopping during the morning and afternoon for a glass of water. Better still, on these hot days, have a bottled carbonated beverage. It will quench thirst much more quickly and its "zippy" refreshment is certain to hit the spot.

Joan of Arc Circle Meets for Dinner

At 6:30 p. m. Tuesday, members of the Joan of Arc circle of the Daughters of Isabella had a covered-dish dinner in North Lake park pavilion. Miss Mary Rizzo and her committee were in charge. Card games followed with prizes in auction bridge going to Mrs. John Daley, Mrs. J. E. Marshall and Mrs. L. Murphy.

Contract bridge prizes were won by Mrs. C. J. Kalbfleisch, Mrs. Joseph Mayer and Mrs. G. E. Wehinger. The next business meeting will be held in the club rooms in the Bird building on Aug. 11. Plans were made to have the next picnic dinner at North Lake park on Aug. 25. This affair will be for members only.

Brenda — Will You Step Out With Me Tonight?

I know I've been an awful grouch not taking you any place lately. But after standing all day at my new job, my feet don't hurt any more. I'm feeling better. I've reformed — or rather my feet have — thanks to the Joe-Mint you advised. Never tried anything that seemed to draw the pain and the night out so fast — and the way it helps sufferer calmness is nobody's business! Been able to get some extra overtime money — so what do you say, let's go dancing tonight. You can step on my Joe-Mint feet all you want.

Plans were made for an annual family picnic in October. An article on the American flag was read by Mrs. Lottie Filtenger. Mrs. Cochran read a portion of the New Flag Code passed by Congress and approved by President Roosevelt this past June 23. This is the first time that the Tent's flag code has been made legal.

The group sent a letter of thanks to the Mansfield Tent and Avning company for the flags, which they presented to the Tent. Mrs. Alice Oster was awarded the evening gift. After the business refreshments were served by the social committee, including, Miss Harriet Beck, Mrs. Cochran, Mrs. Mary Craig, Mrs. Grace Downer, Mrs. Sue Beach, Mrs. Elpha Kreisher, Miss Viola Wolfgang and Mrs. Emma Lyons.

The next regular meeting will be Aug. 10 at Memorial hall.

Class Meeting Held Tuesday

Last night's meeting of the Christian Home Builders' class was in the form of an ice cream social at the South Main Street Evangelical church. Hosts and hostesses were Rev. and Mrs. C. L. Kern and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Motter. The short business session was in charge of John Noble, vice president.

Plans were made to hold the next meeting on Aug. 25. Arrangements will be made by Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd McCready, Mrs. Mildred Carr, and Mr. and Mrs. Burke Schmittke.

Future Meetings Planned by Club

A corn roast was enjoyed Monday evening by members of the Richland County Youth Co-operative. Scene of the outing was the home of Lloyd and Evelyn Schaff. Program for the next two months was planned by the group. Dates and places for the meetings were announced.

On Aug. 3, the meeting will take place at the home of Dale McKinney, near Shelby. With John E. Moore in charge of recreation. Meeting place on Aug. 17 will be in Trade Council hall on North Park street in Mansfield. Mr. Moore will be host at his home on Park avenue west road on Aug. 31, and on Sept. 21, the members will assemble at the home of Robert Scott on the Lexington-Spring Mill road.

HOLD VICTORY CARD PARTY. Alpha Pi Sigma sorority held a victory card party yesterday at the American Legion home. Heading the arrangement committee were Miss Isabelle Kass and Mrs. Alyce Vahar. Twenty-five tables of bridge were in play. Prizes given were patriotic corsages made of defense stamps. Chances were sold on a $25 war bond. Next meeting will be Sept. 1 in the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

RHO CHAPTER HAS FRY. Ten members and eight guests of Rho chapter of Chi Sigma sorority enjoyed a hamburger fry last evening at the cabin of Dr. and Mrs. C. E. Hunter, Maple lane road. Mrs. William Mosey and Mrs. Norman Leonard were in charge. On Aug. 11 a combined social and business meeting will be held, place to be announced.

FRIENDLY DINNER CLUB. The Friendly Dinner club met recently with Mrs. Harley Miles, 51 West Park boulevard, for a covered-dish dinner. The table was decorated with garden flowers. A social afternoon was spent by the group. Next meeting will be a picnic dinner at North Lake park some time in September. Mrs. Paul Dorman will be hostess.

Auxiliary Plans Combined Picnic

Mrs. Russell Moore, 407 Harmon avenue, entertained members of the Disabled American Veterans' Auxiliary yesterday afternoon. Eight members were present for the meeting. For the luncheon the hostess took the group to a nearby drug store.

During the business session a picnic was planned Aug. 9 for the Auxiliary and the Disabled American Veterans' group. It will be a basket picnic at 2 p. m. at North Lake park with the women officers in charge. Plans were also discussed concerning the special membership drive lasting until Sept. 1 and notice was made of the reduced dues. They collected sales tax stamps to send to the Veterans' hospital in Chillicothe.

Ways Of Having Good Desserts Without Sugar

If you have a family of dessert lovers, you may be finding it difficult to make the tempting delicacies they desire with a limited amount of sugar. Of course, you can use sugar substitutes — corn syrup, maple syrup or maple sugar and honey — to make delicious desserts. But there are still other ways to make your sugar go further.

Use carbonated beverages, ice cream, or marshmallows in desserts to satisfy your sweet tooth. Carbonated beverages add a delightful tang that will bring praise from your friends and family. You will appreciate the ease with which soft drinks can be used. Simply uncup the bottle and pour the bubbling goodness into your favorite recipe.

Maple Parfait
1 pint vanilla ice cream
½ cup maple syrup
¼ quart ginger ale
1 tsp. lemon juice
1 cup evaporated milk
Place 2 tablespoons maple sugar into each parfait glass. Add a tablespoon of ice cream. Finish filling glasses with ginger ale. Add lemon juice to evaporated milk and whip. Top each glass with a fluff of whipped mixture. Serves 6.

Learn To Relax, And Smile For Beauty, Health

By PEGGY MASON

Exercise, relax, smile! There are three good beauty rules for busy, work-filled lives. And not one of them means neglecting our daily duties or treating lightly this serious business of winning the war.

Attention to these beauty commands does mean, however, that you'll feel more fit for your daily routine of housework and war work, and that your home will be more pleasant for all the family.

You can't beat regular "setting up" exercises for that feeling of fitness. And we mean regular—not doing them when you happen to remember. You know the armed forces in training go through routine calisthenics every day—and just ask one of the boys in service if he doesn't feel the benefit of it. It's important for us in the home to have a regular time for a few stretching and bending exercises. Ten minutes a day will suffice, but it must be every day.

Relax. Don't forget to relax in the way you prefer. Relaxation for you may consist of half an hour with a book or magazines—it may be golf or tennis—it may be a walk in the open air. Don't be afraid you're wasting time, for the health benefits from a complete change of pace and activity cannot be counted. Health authorities stress the importance of recreation to relieve the strain of heavy work schedules.

Smile. Last of all—smile! After you've been rushing all day from one appointment to another, hurrying to get dinner on the table, stop and check up on yourself. Is your face a mask of grim determination? Are you wearing a permanent frown? Are you allowing worry to show up in your facial expression? Erase all these signs that detract from beauty with a genuine relaxing smile. Greet the family pleasantly. Take whatever comes with a sense of humor. It helps a lot to make life more pleasant for you and those around you if you look and feel healthy and happy.

of Lodi; Miss Jessie Cole of Plymouth, and Miss Margaret Cole of Pittsburgh, enjoyed a picnic supper Sunday at the home of Mrs. Josephine Cole.

Mrs. Lena Becker and Mrs. Mary From of Plymouth, were recent callers of Mrs. M. A. Bowser.

EASY TO SERVE

Keep a supply of bottled soft drinks on hand for unexpected callers. They are inexpensive, quick, and easy to serve.

A POST-CARD in the morning mail reveals that Mr. and Mrs. Harold C. Doolittle, Dawson avenue, Mr. and Mrs. Paul D. Hoch and daughter, Carolyn, of Marion, are enjoying a 10-day fishing trip. They're staying at St. Clair, Mich., where Mrs. Hoch also is visiting her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Bending. Visitors to this city are Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Morris of Springfield, who are guests at the home of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Wagg, 54 Sherman avenue.

A trio of Mansfielders left yesterday on a four-week motor trip through the New England states. They are Mrs. C. Lyman Lantz, her mother, Mrs. Anna E. Young, and Mrs. Glenn Marriott. After visiting Vermont, Maine and Massachusetts, the travelers probably will stop in New York City before returning home.

MISS BETTY CRICFIELD, 461 Sloane avenue, returned home yesterday from New London, Conn., where she and Private First Class Ray E. Dondero of Camp Shelby, Miss., were guests of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Dondero, sr. During their stay they visited New York City and attended the Army-Navy broadcast, the Stork club and the stage show, "Sons of Fun." Miss Cricfield says they also saw several movie stars "in person."

Here Are Hints For Homemakers

Have lumps in your gravies?

Follow these rules and eliminate them. Add cold milk or water to the meat juice in the pan first, then add flour thoroughly mixed with water. Bring to a boil, stirring constantly until the mixture thickens. The constant stirring is important.

A supply of glassed fruit juices in the refrigerator is handy for emergency use when unexpected callers come on a hot summer day. New, streamlined fruit juice bottles are handy to store and easy to pour.

Keep handles of pans cooking on the stove turned away out of reach of small children. Many burns have resulted from the accidental tipping over of pans containing boiling liquid.

Take care of what you have this year is the rule. Keep household appliances clean and in good condition by checking them frequently and thoroughly.

Correct Way To Punish Your Child

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.
"Isolate the naughty child," is a favorite slogan of the child training expert. "Send him to his room or away from the group."

Suppose when he goes to another room he breaks things there or does some other mischief. In that event he may get satisfaction from the knowledge that he is annoying you, and, moreover, he learns to be destructive.

You will know beforehand what he is likely to do. In case he is pretty sure to be a nuisance when sent away, don't send him. A better way is to sentence him to sit in a chair for twenty minutes, or some other definite period.

If he won't stay in the chair until his time is up it would be foolish to try to hold him or tie him. Unless he knows some more painful experience awaits him if he gets down your whole scheme fails. A parent is unfortunate when her child has not learned to accept authority as final. The child who has not very early associated physical pain with "no" so that "no" has finality, is likely to give the parent endless trouble.

Effective Punishment.
When the child is sentenced to sit in a chair and does not cry but sits there trying to amuse himself with his thoughts, do not worry. He has been restrained. If the period is long enough, is certain and is definite, he will not find the task enjoyable. If, indeed, he takes his punishment like a philosopher, you are pretty sure the scheme has worked. The child who howls like an injured animal when made to sit in the chair has not learned the certainty and inevitableness of the punishment. If he begs and argues there is in his mind some doubt about the matter; and he has found you a weakling.

Don't "Rub It In."
But suppose he says, "I don't care, I wanted to sit here anyway." Reply with not a word; let him serve the time, and if the punishment has not proved effective, see that the time is a little longer for the repetition of the same offense. But don't "rub it in" by revengeful words or actions.

In the home it is not advisable as a rule, to send a child under five or six to another room to punish him. A wiser way is to send him to a chair or corner of the room where you can have an immediate check upon him.

A GOOD PUNCH!
For a quickly and easily made punch, try Grape Ginger. Blend two cups grape juice with four cups ginger ale. Serves 6.

How to Make Leftovers Tasty Food

By BETSY NEWMAN
WASTE WARDEN is the new title for the successful home maker. She eliminates waste from her kitchen and utilizes every scrap of food available. We Americans are said to be the world's greatest wasters, throwing away foods that are used in tasty dishes by cooks of other nations. But all that is past. We're learning—the hard way, maybe—that we can do that too. Leftover fish may be utilized in several ways, and today's menu includes two ways to make it into appetizing dishes.

Today's Menu
Boiled or Baked Potatoes
Creamed Leftover Fish or Fish Omelette
Crisp Green Salad Green Beans
Raspberry Pie
Tea or Coffee

Creamed Fish Flakes
2 c. leftover fish, flaked
2 tbsps. butter or margarine
2 tbsps. flour
1 c. milk
Salt
Pepper

Melt sauce in saucepan, stir in flour and blend until smooth, add milk gradually, stirring all the time until sauce thickens. Add 1/2 teaspoon salt and dash of pepper, then stir in fish, cook for a moment, and serve hot over either potatoes or toast. Serves 4.

Fish Flake Omelette
2 c. flaked fish
1/2 c. milk or fish stock
1/4 tsp. black pepper
2 tbsps. chopped parsley
4 eggs
2 tbsps. grated onion
3 tbsps. vinegar or lemon juice

"The Authority on Authorities"

THREE SIGNALS TO PICK

In some situations, you have a

4 tbsps. melted butter or cooking oil

Light oven for slow heat. Add vinegar or lemon juice to fish flakes, heat butter or cooking oil in frying pan. Beat egg whites stiff and set aside, then beat egg yolks and add milk or stock, salt, pepper, parsley and onion and stir; add cold flakes and mix well and last fold in stiffly beaten egg whites and pour into hot fat. Let cook slowly over low heat. When cooked through place in oven to dry on top. When dry enough to touch without wetting the fingers, remove and cut opposite edges of omelette loose from rim. Fold over and remove to hot platter.

The Sunshine 4-H club held its regular meeting Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Downard. Due to the absence of the president and vice president a short business meeting was in order. Followed by instrumental music given by Dorothy Etzweiler and Nonna Rhamey. Refreshments were served. Games were led by Madelyn Eagle. Next meeting will be held Aug. 6th, at Mrs. Downard's.

Mrs. Ada Bierman of Lisbon, and Miss Ethel Esterly of Columbiana were Saturday afternoon guests of Rev. and Mrs. Krumm.

choice of three different signals. One of these comes when you have opened an ace, or a king from ace-king, against a trump contract and find a singleton of that suit in the dummy. It must be perfectly clear, except on the rarest of occasions, that you are going to shift to some other suit.

Your partner then must try to guide you, if there is any doubt about which you should choose. A high card, in following suit, indicates preference for the higher-ranking of the other two side suits, your lowest a preference for the lower-ranking. A card clearly readable as an intermediate calls for a switch to trumps or for the leader to use his own judgment.

After East won the opening trick with his lead of the diamond A, he led the heart 6, in an effort to cut down the dummy's ruffing. The K and the Q therefore settled the defensive trumps, and North set out upon establishing his long spades for discards. The A and a ruff of the 3 brought that about more quickly than he expected, as the K dropped on the second round. The heart 5 to the J put the dummy in to discard all of his own clubs on the five remaining spades, and he had a trump left in dummy to ruff his other diamond, so that he made six-odd, or two extra tricks.

If East had paid attention to his partner's card on the first trick, he would have noticed it was the diamond 2, certainly his partner's lowest. Properly interpreted, this asked for a switch to the lower-ranking clubs. If a club had been led, the side would have taken one more trick than it did. In this case, the J would have been the correct card to request a switch to spades, and the 8, obviously an intermediate, would have asked for a trump lead to the second trick, or left it up to East.

Tomorrow's Problem.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)
By ADELE GARRISON

AT MARY'S query there swept over me all my nervous, unreasoning objections to leaving my hotel suite, for fear there might be a telephone call from the farmhouse with some possible message of disaster to the children.

"Perhaps it might be managed," I said slowly, "but you know how things are at the farm with Aunt Katharine away. I like to be near a telephone by which they can reach me after night falls."

"Isn't Grandma there, also Nurse Whitlock and Aunt Lillian, to say nothing of Katie and 'dot Jeem'?"

She so perfectly imitated Katie's deprecating manner when she speaks of her husband that I chuckled.

"Yes, they're all there," I said. "All engaged in seeing to it that Faith and Junior and Roderick don't get lost, strayed or stolen?"

"Yes," I assented, "but they're not all exactly what you would call 'assets'."

"No-o," she admitted. "Grandma probably has to be prevented by force from scalping Katie at least three times a day. Katie is taking her troubles out on her long-suffering Jim, while Aunt Lillian—"

Her voice trailed away into silence, and I knew her thoughts, like mine, were with Lillian, now at the farm in obedience to my father's mandate, and suffering with Spartan heroism a thousand deaths, while still no ray of light pierced the cloud of mystery surrounding the whereabouts of her daughter.

"Aunt Lillian is an asset, always," I said. "And I think my father was wise in his mandate. She loves the children, and with their constant companionship and the care she insists upon giving them, her burden is being eased, though not forgotten."

Ready for Message
"However," I went on, "she is far more nervous about the children than Miss Whitlock, more fearful of some catastrophe befalling them. I know she likes to feel I am where she can reach me by telephone at any minute."

Mary then stressed another point in her argument. "Of course your biggest asset is Miss Whitlock," she said hopefully. "She's almost as capable as Aunt Katharine, even if not quite up to Aunt Lillian," Mary said shrewdly.

Then she changed to the voice with which Dickey once said she could "coax any bird off any variety of bush."

"Don't you think you could possibly make an exception this once?" she asked. "Aunt Katharine would be here in the suite, wouldn't she?"

"Yes, she'd be here."

"Then," Mary said triumphantly, "you could give her the telephone number of that restaurant, and if she received a summons from the farm, she could relay it to you there. That would solve your problem, wouldn't it?"

"It might," I told her reluctantly. Then I faced her with sudden resolution.

"But you know I can do nothing."

without my father's permission. He's in the next suite. I'll go in and tell him about this. Or have you already spoken to him about this mysterious old man?"

Her face registered quick alarm. "No, I haven't," she said. "But, Auntie Midge, do you suppose that when you tell him what I've told you, he'll think I've broken my promise to him and spoken out of turn?"

BUCYRUS JOINS NATION-WIDE SAFETY STUDY

Training Courses Will Be Offered to Reduce Mishaps in Industry.

BUCYRUS—Bucyrus is expected to join in the safety program now being adopted nation-wide for the conservation of manpower in defense industry.

A preliminary meeting was called Monday night at the Y. M. C. A. by H. G. Hays, safety consultant for the division of labor standards in the U. S. department of labor, who outlined the training course in safety which is designed to cut down loss of labor from accidents.

The course will be offered if at least 20 applications for the classes are enrolled. Hays said. The classes are under the supervision of Ohio Northern university and will consist of 96 hours of study, three hours a night, two nights a week for 16 weeks.

A local committee will be named to set up the local program.

WOMEN'S BENEFIT UNION PLANS FOR INSPECTION AT CRESTLINE

CRESTLINE—Looking forward to their annual inspection which will be held early this fall, members of the Women's Benefit Association discussed plans for the affair at their regular meeting Monday evening.

Mrs. Harry Werner presided for the meeting. A report of the Health meeting and school instruction held July 13 at the home of Mrs. Janet Long was given by Anna Zimmerman. The Health Supervisor, Mrs. Barth and State Field Director Mrs. Rhoebe Jones of Cleveland, and the managing deputy, Mrs. Dorothy Barry of Cleveland, were all present for the meeting.

Mrs. Long and Mrs. Francis Smith, junior supervisor, are arranging plans for a picnic for the Juniors to be held before the next regular meeting of the review August 10.

HIRES TEACHER

Gallion Board Acts To Fill Junior High Vacancy.

GALLION—Milo J. Brown, of Ashland, was hired as Gallion junior high school science instructor when the Gallion board of education met Tuesday night.

He takes the place of Curtis Howard who resigned recently to enter United States armed forces. The position as teacher of industrial arts which Howard also taught will be assumed by Robert L. Sheffer, basketball coach, and teacher in the junior high school.

Brown has taught for the past two years at Butler village schools.

Another position was declared vacant by Superintendent M. A. Povernmire when the board of education accepted the resignation of John Anderson, of Coshocton, who was hired early this summer to complete the Gallion coaching staff.

GALLION—Members of the Altar and Fireside circle of the Trinity Lutheran church met Tuesday evening at Heise park for a picnic supper. Elizabeth Young, of Oshkosh, Wis., was a guest. Following the supper the members listened to the band concert.

The girls introduced included: Mary Lou Metzger, Florence Metzger, Betty Schaeffer, Carol and Donna Fabian, Marcella Koschnick, Charmaine Wise, Pauline Phillips, Betty Bauer, Marie Brown, Beverly Logan and Betty Lou Staub. Pauline Phillips later provided musical entertainment with guitar music and a vocal solo.

SUPPER HELD
GALLION—Meeting at Heise park members of the Women's Benefit association held a chicken supper Tuesday night.

NO MANIPULATION OF OUR PRICES...

Of one thing any family may be certain when they come to make selection at this Funeral Home. There is no manipulation of prices based upon what we think they can or ought to pay.

In our display room every casket carries a plainly marked price. That price covers both the casket and all customary services for a complete funeral. Clothing or a vault are intentionally omitted from these prices because the family often prefers to supply clothing, and a vault is not always used.

This plan of fair dealing has been adopted by many of the better funeral homes. It should be by all.

Sport Podge

It seems there are ways and ways of getting birdies, and not all of them are confined strictly to the golf course.

You've read here how Mrs. H. H. Shaw went all the way to Michigan to get a bird with her rod and reel and fishing line. But Hon Wehinger of the News-Journal women's golf league goes no farther away from home than her own back yard to snare her share of the feathered flock.

Seems she was due for a league match not so long ago, and she hadn't played golf all week, so she decided a bit of home work to brush up her game might not be out of order.

So she takes her golf clubs and a few practice balls and out in the back yard she goes, and starts swinging. And bang, the first shot snails a chicken and breaks its leg.

"And the worst of it is," says her husband, Jerry Wehinger, "she took that first and course, but she wouldn't touch the injured chicken. Had to call me up, and make me come home and put a splint on the thing. And the chicken is walking around today as good as ever."

The saddest words I've ever heard, "I wound up with bogeys, putting for birds."

While we're on the subject of the Wehingers, it might not be too early to let the bowling public in on the news that Jerry's 36 Bar will be jumping next winter from the Club League to the City "A" bowling circuit.

Willie "Pickles" Hipp was given the job of rounding up a team for the faster alley company, and has collected an aggregation of money bowlers that promises to make things interesting for the A-leaguers.

Beside himself, Hipp has lined up the veteran Brig Young, always a tough man when the chips are down, Jim Weems, a regular member of the All-American group of 600 shooters, Johnny Bernat, strictly a money bowler, Art Hilborn, star of the Bismarck Birdie Brands and holder of more perfect games than any bowler now performing in Mansfield, and Murph Hanna, who may beat me yet on that 600 bet.

Of all the bowlers, Murph's my pet. He keeps me stocked in cigars, half a dozen packs laid on the table, maybe he'll hit 600 sometime.

Close Games Seen In Loop

Softball Play In City League Tightens Up.

City softball league play tightened up last evening with three close games going in the books. Mansfield Tire edged Dominion 6 to 5, Ohio Public Service nudged Barnes 6 to 4, and Ideal Electric won over Teaco 9 to 5 after gaining a 6-0 lead in the first two stanzas.

McKee held Teaco to seven hits, and Jim Musille let Barnes down with the same number of blows. Harner got a home run for Teaco.

Final scores: Teaco (5) abrh Reidel, r... 3; McKee, ss... 3; Shadle, 2b... 1; Crawford, 3b... 1; Taylor, 1b... 0; McKee, p... 0; Barnes (6) abrh McKee, ss... 3; Taylor, 1b... 0; McKee, p... 0; Barnes (6) abrh McKee, ss... 3; Taylor, 1b... 0; McKee, p... 0.

Dodgers And Cards Split Even

Double Header Decides Just Exactly Nothing.

By JUDSON BAILEY (Associated Press Sports Writer)

BASEBALL is generally considered a "form" sport, but sometimes its form assumes the strangest shapes.

The Brooklyn Dodgers and St. Louis Cardinals came to grips yesterday in what was expected to be a desperate doubleheader, the National league champions striving to hold their seven-game lead and the Redbirds making what might be their last challenge.

The set-up was such that $5,212 paying customers packed the Dodgers' Ebbets field and thousands of others failed to get seats.

So what happened? The two Titans stumped around for six hours and split the bill, settling nothing in particular.

Brooklyn won the first game, 7-6. Each team made three errors and all of the Dodgers' runs were unearned except a homer by Johnny Rizzo in the eighth inning that decided the outcome.

The nightcap was interrupted for half an hour by weather in the third chapter while Kirby Higbe was leading Max Lanier 1-0. Later the Cards scored seven runs in the seventh inning and won 9-1, getting 16 hits to Brooklyn's six.

There were other funny doings, too. The Washington Senators made seven errors but stopped the St. Louis Browns 9-4. The Browns, who had won 15 of their previous 18 games, were held to six hits by Alex Carrasquel, but had 14 men left on base.

The Boston Red Sox inflated their second place margin to two full games by beating the Cleveland Indians again 3-1 with all their runs coming on Ulisses Lupien's double with the bases loaded in the second inning. Ted Williams went hitless.

At Chicago Lefty Ed Smith absorbed his 17th shelling as the New York Yankees overpowered the White Sox 8-3 with DiMaggio, Chley Keller and Joe Gordon hitting home runs.

At New York the Giants swept a doubleheader from the Chicago Cubs 9-5 and 3-0. The first seven Giants to come to bat in the first inning of the first game made hits, to give Carl Hubbell a six-run start.

The Cincinnati Reds took both ends of a doubleheader from the Philadelphia 8-1 and 3-1. Johnny Vander Meer allowed only two hits in the five-hitter in the second game to get his 13th victory.

At Boston John Sain, making his first start for the Braves, hurled three-hit shutout ball for eight innings and then let the Pittsburgh Pirates tie the score at three all in the ninth. The Braves won 4-3 when Nanny Fernandez bunted with the bases loaded to squeeze across the deciding run.

Here's 9th Round Knockout

Snoring peacefully in a resined ring in Pittsburgh is Booker Beckwith, Chicago light heavyweight, as the referee goes through the unnecessary form of counting him out. Beckwith collided with the rock fist of Ezzard Charles, youthful Cincinnati fighter, in the third minute of the ninth round.

Sox Gain At Tribe's Expense

Cleveland's Chances at Second Place Vanish.

CLEVELAND.—(U.P.)—Cleveland's chances of taking over second place from the Boston Red Sox during the teams' current series here vanished today as the easterners pulled two games and a few percentage points beyond the Redskins.

The Sox took their second consecutive game last night, 3-1, handing Jim Bagby his fifth defeat in 16 starts.

The Indians, who must win today and tomorrow to gain a virtual second place tie with the men from Beantown, picked Chubby Dean to start them off. Oscar Judd was Manager Joe Cronin's hurling choice.

Ulisses Lupien knocked in all three Boston runs last night with a mighty double in the second inning after the bases were loaded with none out. Cronin opened the session with a single, Bobby Doerr walked, sending Cronin to second, and Pete Fox tapped a sacrifice to Bagby. Jim fumbled the ball for the evening's only miscue, and the three runners were safe.

Lupien, former Harvard baseball captain now playing first base for Boston, then stepped into one of Bagby's slants and punched a double to left.

Cleveland's tally came in the fourth. Kenny Keltner singled to center, advanced to third on success, and reached home on Buster Mills' tap to deep short.

Richfield Stake Brings Out Colts

OLD ORCHARD BEACH, Me.—(U.P.)—The Richfield stake, worth $3,000 and regarded by many light harness devotees as a final rehearsal for the Hambletonian, brings a dozen three-year-old trotters to the Kite track today.

Colby Hanover, favorite for the $40,000 trotting classic at Goshen, N. Y., Aug. 12, is the favorite.

Because of two successive postponements, today's card also includes the $4,135 national stake for two-year-old trotters and the national stake for the two-year-old pacers, worth $2,042.50.

Young Comiskey Barred From Bench

CHICAGO.—(U.S.)—Sixteen-year-old Charlie Comiskey, who some day will own the Chicago White Sox baseball club, was forbidden today to sit on the White Sox bench even if he is in uniform.

The order came from Will Harridge, president of the American league. The action of Harridge was the result of an incident last Sunday when young Comiskey, unable to restrain himself, rushed out onto the field to make a protest of an umpire's decision.

Harridge notified Manager Jimmy Dykes of the league rule which prohibits anyone not under contract to the club from sitting on the bench during the progress of the game.

Paul's defeated Maple Lake juniors 7 to 3 in a boys' softball league game at North Lake park yesterday, while North Lake claimed a forfeit from Y. M. C. A. Pros.

STRANGE BIRD

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.—(U.P.)—Oscar Del Sarto, truckman, has a mystery bird that he would be glad to have some one take off his hands. The bird lit on his truck and rode home with him.

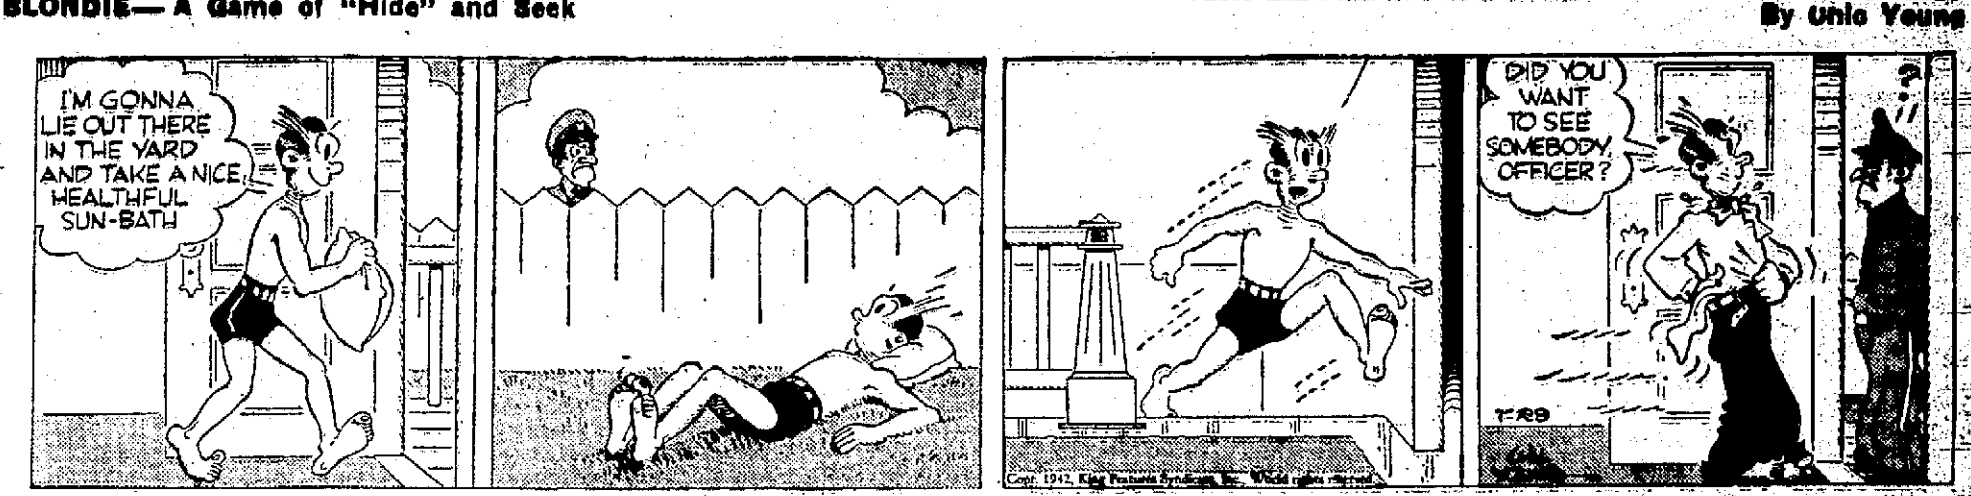

No ornithologist in the city has been able to identify it. In the meantime he has named it "P-38" because it takes off like an army plane—a short run, then a lift into the air. But it always comes back to him. Furthermore, it looks sad, eats little, and likes to sit in a dark corner.

The cost of producing automatic guns has been reduced 40 per cent in the last two years.

Prices Are Mixed, Narrow, as Steel Slip Back on Day's Trade.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Stocks were narrow and mixed in today's dealings with steel inclined to slip back. Slightly ahead were American Telephone, Westinghouse, Mack Trucks and Phelps Dodge. Fractionally lower were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem and United Aircraft.

Steel shares had to contend with the June quarter statement of U. S. Steel corp., released over yesterday's close, showing profit of $3,945,373, which fell short of the preferred dividend requirements, earnings were $2.48 a common share in the first quarter and $1.12 in the 1941 June quarter.

Students of industrial trends noted another sharp rise in electric power distribution for the week ended July 25. Edison Electric Institute reported a send-out of 3,625,645,000 kilowatt hours against 3,565,367,000 in the preceding week and 3,220,526,000 a year ago.
